Recent Developments in Trademark and Copyright Law

C. Douglas McDonald
Carlton Fields Jorden Burt P.A.
Trademarks and Sec. 43(a)
Canada Divorces the U.S. for Europe

- Radical revision of Canadian Trademark Laws
  - Without advice from Canadian trademark lawyers
- Eliminates need for use before registration
- Register entire classes, without use
- Adopts standard Nice Classification system
- Even eliminated the hyphen in “trade-mark”
- Currently awaiting regs – may go into force this fall

- Big Issue - How to clear trademarks for use in Canada in the future?
Does the FDA Approve Deceptive Labels?

- Minute Maid sold POMEGRANATE - BLUEBERRY Flavored Blend of 5 Juices - FDA approved label
  - blend of 99.4% apple & grape juice, 0.3% pomegranate juice and 0.2% blueberry juice
- POM sued under Sec. 43(a) for unfair comp./false advertising
- SCOTUS - Private competitor can bring 43(a) action for deceptive food labeling, despite FDA approval of label

- Takeaway – Litigation on Lanham Act labeling claims likely to increase
Toner Cartridges and False Advertising

Standing

- Static not a competitor to Lexmark; made chips for Lexmark cartridge competitors
  - Sales of chips tracked competitors’ sales of cartridges
- SCOTUS created new, exclusive test for standing in 43(a) false advertising claims
  - (1) Party must be within “zone of interest” of 43(a)
  - (2) False advertising must have “proximately caused” party’s injuries
- Takeaway – dramatically undermines “initial interest confusion” theory in Lanham Act cases
You Want Fees With That Lanham Act Claim?

Fair Wind Sailing Inc. v. H. Dempster et al, 764 F. 3d 303 (3rd Cir. 2014)

- In Octane Fitness, SCOTUS defined standard for awarding attorney fees in “exceptional” patent cases – if case just “stands out from others”
  - J. Sotomayor’s opinion defined “exceptional case” using Lanham Act standard
- 3rd Circuit held this to be “clear message” that Octane rule applies to trademark and trade dress cases
- Takeaway – expect more fee awards in trademark cases
Raging Bull – Is Laches Still a Defense to Copyright Claims?

- Petrella inherited copyright to screenplay for Raging Bull but waited 18 years to bring suit for infringement, until after movie finally became profitable; MGM asserted laches as defense
- SCOTUS – Laches cannot bar claim for legal relief for infringement occurring within 3-year window of 17 U.S.C. 507(b)
- But unreasonable delay may bar equitable relief of injunction or accounting of defendant’s profits

- Takeaway – do not delay bringing copyright infringement suit
The Turtles are “Happy Together” in California

Flo & Eddie Inc. v. Sirius XM Radio Inc. 2014 WL 4725382(9/22/14)

- U.S. Copyright Laws protect sound recordings only from 1972 forward; pre-1972 recordings left to common law and state statutes
- California passed statute in 1981 (C.C.C. Sec. 980) granting all rights in pre-1972 recordings to creators
- The Turtles (Flo & Eddie Inc.) brought $100 million class action against Sirius XM for playing pre-1972 recordings
- S.D. Cal. granted summary judgment under Sec. 980 and also for unfair competition and common law misappropriation and conversion
- Further actions in New York and Florida for common law copyright infringement, unfair competition and misappropriation
- New class action against Pandora in California

- Takeaway – pre-1972 sound recording are protected, at least in California, and now in New York and likely many other states
Transforming Fair Use

Kienitz v. Sconnie Nation LLC, 766 F.3d 756; 111 USPQ 2nd 2086(9/15/14)

- 2nd Cir. had held that fair use determined by whether new work was “transformative”. Cariou v. Prince, 713 F. 3d 694 (2013)
- 7th Cir. rejected 2nd Cir. test, asserting the four factors of the statute, 17 U.S.C. 107
  - If “transformative” were the test, it would negate right to control derivative works under 17 U.S.C. 106(2).
- Kienitz has now filed a petition for cert. with SCOTUS

- Takeaway – fair use should focus on effect on market for original